The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer
One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

No Milksoops

One great mistake made by many of the parents who object to training young children is the notion that discipline connotes harshness. It need do nothing of the kind.

How did you bring your sons up to be so obedient and dutiful? we said. They defer to you in everything, and yet there isn't a bit of the milksoop about them, and they are not a bit afraid of you. You seem to be such friends, and yet I have heard you say you have strong ideas about obedience. How did you manage it?

I made them obey absolutely; I was strict in my discipline; I tried to be entirely just, and I loved them
to death, was the answer.

So long as your children are persuaded that devoted love is the cause and accompaniment of the discipline you need not be afraid that they will drift away from you, if you make justice one of the foundations of your training.

Begin with your tiny baby and, as you drill him in regular habits of eating and sleeping, accustom him to the method of obedience. When the time comes—as it may—when we will attempt a small revolt, don't give way, but hold your own. Avoid issues as much as possible, but when they come meet them squarely.

A Sea Sandstorm

With its decks covered with an inch or more of sand, and the officers and crew looking as if they had returned from a desert trip, the schooner Alvena, twenty-seven days from Columbia River, in command of Captain Abrahamson, arrived in San Diego, Cal., recently. While the vessel was coming alone under a light wind seventy-five miles off shore and 125 miles north of San Diego, it became enveloped in a cloud of fine sand. The sea was smooth and the wind from the south-east. The dust seemed to drop from the sky.

This condition prevailed for two days, according to the crew, and not until Point Loma was sighted did they get out of the dust. From that time until the schooner got into port the crew was busy sweeping the accumulated sand off the lumber cargo and decks, and getting the fine particles
of grit out of their eyes and hair.—

Tardy Honors for Lady Hamilton

An extraordinary proposal has been made, apparently in good faith, to exhume the remains of Emma, Lady Hamilton, from her grave in Calais
Abbey, and transport them to Westminister Abbey. The argument is that Nelson bequeathed her to the country, and sentimentalists think that some amends for letting her die in poverty may be made by burying her nearly a century later in the "national Valhalla."

It is argued that it was only through her influence that Nelson went to sea again and so fought and won his greatest victory at Trafalgar.
He had formed a desire to settle down to a country life, but Lady Hamilton persuaded him to make one more cruise in the service of his country.

Those who oppose the transfer suggest that her motive was not patriotism, but a desire for a little more limelight, and they add that although it is true she ran through a property of $2,000 a year of her own she was not exactly starving when she died, as she was in the enjoyment of an annuity of $200 settled upon her by her daughter Horatia.

What do you think of this scheme
of having the countries exchange
children?

What's the idea?
An English family, for instance, exchanges children for a couple of years with a German family. Thus both sets of children get a chance to learn another language. References are exchanged, and all that sort of thing.

It's an elegant scheme. My neighbors have a kid that I would like to see exchanged with some family in Siberia.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

GUARD BABY'S HEALTH IN THE SUMMER

The summer months are the most dangerous to little ones. The complaints of that season which are cholera infantum, colic, diarrhoea and dysentery come on so quickly that often a little one is beyond aid before the mother realizes he is really ill.
The mother must be on her guard to prevent these troubles or if they do come on suddenly to cure them. No other medicine is of such aid to the mother during hot weather as is Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the bowels and stomach and are absolutely safe. Sold by medicine

Royal Relics

Notwithstanding the efforts of stewards to keep track of royal relics,
such things turn up in odd places from time to time. For instance the silk stockings which Queen Victoria is said to have worn on her wedding day and a piece of orange blossom from her bridal bouquet were among a number of royal bits and scraps
sold a day or two ago at the Manor House, Knaresborough, near Harrogate. They fetched $77. They were found in a bijou table which also contained pieces of the bridal cake of King Edward and King George, Lord Nelson's garter and a pair of shoes once worn by Pauline Bonaparte, sister of the great Napoleon.

WELL PEOPLE TOO

Wise Doctor Gives Postum to Convalescents.

A wise doctor tries to give nature its best chance by saving the little strength of the already exhausted patient, and building up wasted energy with simple but powerful nourishment.

"Five years ago," writes a doctor,
"I commenced to use Postum in my own family instead of coffee." (It's a well-known fact that tea is just as injurious as coffee because it contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee). "I was so well pleased with the results that I had two grocers place it in stock, guaranteeing its sale."

"I then commenced to recommend it to my patients in place of coffee, as a nutritious beverage. The consequence is, every store in town is now selling it, as it has become a household necessity in many homes."

"I'm sure I prescribe Postum as often as any one remedy in the Materia Medica—in almost every case of indigestion and nervousness I treat,
and with the best results."

When I once introduce it into a family, it is quite sure to remain. I shall continue to use it and prescribe it in families where I practice."

"In convalescence from pneumonia, typhoid fever and other cases I give it as a liquid, easily absorbed diet.
You may use my letter as a reference any way you see fit." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor,

What a Rat Will Do

Almost unbelievable are some of the things done by the rat, the squealing, filthy gluttonous, all-pervading and all-destroying brown rat. Rats often gnaw the hoofs of horses until the blood comes. They have been known to attack fat hogs and eat holes in their bodies, causing death.
They will fight human beings if cornered. They often steal valuable articles to help them in building nests.

The following were found in a single nest: Three bedroom towels, two serviettes, five dust cloths, two pairs of linen knickerbockers, six linen pocket handkerchiefs, and one silk handkerchief. This rat, which was a model of industry and thrift, had carried away and stored near its nest 1½ lbs. of sugar, a pudding, a stalk of celery, a beet, carrots, turnips and potatoes.

In the last dozen years over 5,000, 000 human beings have died of plague
in India alone. The Indian Plague Commission, after careful enquiry, found that bubonic plague in man is entirely dependent on the disease of the rat.

Marvelous in its destructiveness is the common house-mouse, closely related to the rat. The field-mouse, too, is highly destructive, the most destructive of all the rodents.

The cheapness of Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator puts it within reach of all, and it can be got at any

Save One for Her

Edith was light-hearted and merry over everything. Nothing appealed to her seriously. So one day her mother decided to invite a very serious young parson to dinner, and he was placed next the light-hearted girl.
Everything went well until she asked him—

You speak of everybody having a mission. What is yours?
My mission, said the parson, is to save young men.

Good, replied the girl, I'm glad to meet you. I wish you'd save one for me.

This is to certify that I have used MINARD'S Liniment in my family for years, and consider it the best liniment on the market. I have found it excellent for horse flesh.

The Psychology of Italics

Doctors of style in the writing of English declare that the use of italics
for emphasis is a positive fault, showing weakness of construction and inability to express ideas strongly by a right arrangement of words. Nevertheless, italics are used deliberately by some forceful writers to gain added effect and to fasten the eye and the mind of the reader upon important points somewhat as a speaker will strengthen his oration by vocal emphasis and gesture. Whatever may be said for or against the use of italics
they certainly reveal the writer's sense of relative importance in the things he has written. He has selected words and phrases, and has given them special prominence. As we note their significance we begin to know more of the man behind the words. His choice of emphasis tells us what manner of man he is.
His italics are either an index of his mental or moral character.

We are all writing history day by day. On every page some things are written small, others stand out boldly in italics. Take up the book at night and read the story of the day. It will be an interesting record—perhaps a startling one. Doubtless we shall feel very much like correcting the proof when we find where the italics are set.—Christian Herald.

An Oil That Is Prized Everywhere.— Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil was put upon the market without any flourish over thirty years ago. It was put up to meet the wants of a small section, but as soon as its merits became known it had a whole continent for a field, and it is now known and prized throughout this hemisphere. There is nothing equal to it.

Size of Future Ships

Sir William White, a leading naval architect, declared recently that the facts that tend to limit the increase in the size of ships are chiefly commercial. Large ships cost more to build than small ones, and are more expensive to operate. Moreover they are not so sure of obtaining their complements of passengers or cargo without delay. In addition, comparatively few harbors possess channels of sufficient depth or docks
large enough, to accommodate vessels even of the length and weight of the Mauretania. Sir William believes that although large ships will continue to ply between a few favored ports for special services, and even larger ones may be built, the great bulk of ocean traffic will continue to be carried by vessels of moderate size.

Geo. Ham's Laundry

T story is told of a party of eastern manufacturers who were making a trip through the Canadian Northwest. The train was running about three hours late and it was essential that they reach a certain point A—on time to make train connections without delay. As they proceeded however, the train lost more time and the easterners began to get nervous.
They hunted up the conductor and had him interview the crew, but there was no gain in speed. At a stopping point they interviewed the crew personally and threatened to telegraph Sir Thomas Shaughnessy,
but this had no effect.

Finally a happy thought struck one of the Montreal travellers. He knew that George Ham was travelling in the west with an English party.
He also knew that George Ham always sent his laundry to Montreal and it was forwarded to him where-ever he happened to be. He told his conferees, and hunting up the conductor had him send a note to the engine driver that George Ham's laundry was on board and that the train must reach him at A— in time to deliver it to him. The hint of George Ham's laundry being on board was sufficient. The train began to gain time and that afternoon
they steamed into A— three minutes ahead of time.

Power From the Tides

Study has been made of a proposition for generating power for Schleswig-Holstein by utilizing the ebb and flow of the tide, and work is under construction. The island of Nord-strand is being connected with the mainland by a high-water reservoir of 1,500 acres and a low-water reservoir of 1,250 acres. There will always be a head of water in one or other of the reservoirs, which will be available for operating turbines constantly.

In the causes of infant mortality
cholera morbus figures frequently, and it may be said that complaints of the bowels are great destroyers of child life. If all mothers would avail themselves of so effective a remedy
as Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial many a little one could be saved. This Cordial can be given with safety to the smallest child, as there is no injurious substance in it.

Impressions of a Roomer

By H. Armitstead, B. Sc.

It is some months ago (it seems years) since I left Kingston, to come to Calgary. I came straight from Queen's to take up a position as an accountant with my uncle whose offices are in the Continental Block Eighth Avenue. When I arrived in the "Hub of Alberta" it was raining heavily. The streets, the buildings, the vehicles looked as if they had been drawn in ink and carelessly blotted before it was dry. Everything was blurred. When I presented myself at 240A Eighth Avenue, my uncle, an extremely busy man, who won't lose a minute of his business hours if he can help it, told me the conditions and routine of my work and instructed me to go straightway and secure a room somewhere in the West End. Feeling about as dejected as I could, I set off in search of quest. I wandered through that rebel quarter, eyeing the innocent and seductive cards, which cry out so plaintively from the corners of windows. The advertisements on the cards—Rooms, Furnished Rooms, Apartments, Furnished Apartments—suggest the character of the house, although a cynical friend of mine, and he has had a lot of experience in rooming, says that there is no difference between them except in the ascending scale of charges. The notice "Roomers taken in" placed in a prominent position in one window. I looked at it with a certain amount of disdain. It savored too much of audacity and brutal candour of that kind does not appeal to me. For some time I suffered from mental aberration and could not for the life of a decide at which house to apply for a room.

In sheer desperation, I chose to try my fortune at a house that displayed quite a small card, bearing the single word "Rooms", and trying to hide its little modest self in the shade of a somewhat dirty curtain. With mixed feelings, I ascended the steps, rang the bell, and waited the answer.

The door was opened by a tall, passive woman whose fleshy cheeks hung like pouches. Through her spectacles she fixed me with a stony stare. How hard her eyes look through glasses!

In a most halting manner told her the reason of my call. Her old features rather relented and something of a flicker of a smile momentarily passed over her countenance like a fitful gleam of sunshine lighting up a winter scene.

"He had a room to let but before telling it she would like to consult with her husband."

"Bertie! Bertie!" She shouted towards the kitchen in a high piping voice.

I could scarce keep my composure when I saw a small, undernourished, meandering, spare figure of a man, with a bald head, furrowed cheeks, and two bleary listless eyes that spoke of a dull existence, enter the hall.

In later days I have often found myself wondering why the landlady of the house is always a pachyderm and her lord and master (sic) such a miserable specimen of humanity. It is beyond me; perhaps, it is something that I don't understand in the inexplicable nature of woman, or the perversity of man, which makes such extremes meet.

"Well, Miranda what is it?" responded Bertie in a feeble voice. I could not help meditating for a second on the name of this woman. I received a jar and had another ideal shattered. It rended my heart to think of this mountain of flesh being called Miranda—fit to be loved—after the beautiful visions I had formed in my mind of one of my Shakesperian heroines. It was an outrage on my aesthetic taste as to Bertie's name—well, he looked it.

She volubly told him my business, during the recital of which he looked as pensive as he could. She then asked me inside the house and suggested that I should see the room. We went Indian file I sandwiched between the wife and husband who followed in the rear, up two flights of stairs to a room on the top floor. As soon as the lady got her breath, she, incidentally mentioning in solemn tones that she suffered from palpitation of the heart, related the great qualities of the room, I, in my innocence, believed as much of her volubility as I could grasp. When she had finished her oration I meekly asked her for terms. She replied that the usual charge was three dollars a week in advance but if Bertie were agreeable, I might have it for two dollars fifty. Bertie, catching a meaning look in the eye of his spouse, acquiescence. I thought I detected a faint smile playing round the mouth of Miranda, with whose name I venture to take liberties, and a glimmer of light even in poor Bertie's eyes as they left the room.

When alone I found on examination of my room that things were not quite as the lady of the house had stated, or it may be that I could not see things with the same eye. In philosophy it is a well-known fact that no two minds interpret the same thing in the same light. Here was a concrete example that would put to blush any harker in doubt of that truth.

The room, overlooking some horrid stables, was on the north side. The aspect would have depressed a more genial temperament than mine. And it was simply furnished; its simplicity left nothing to be desired. The furniture consisted of an easy chair with one arm missing, a wash-hand stand on four rickety legs, a lustreless mirror, a bed, a curtain which drapes a few square yards of faded—papered wall the arrangement deputizing for a wardrobe. I have since gleaned that rooms are specially furnished at cheap rates at a second hand shop in X—St. S. where all things of honorable antiquity—four-legged memorials of Old Calgary, springless beds that once upheld some civic dignitary, tarnished mirrors that have reflected the charms of a quondam city beauties are to be purchased.

In one corner of the room lay a heap of old magazines—legacies of a former tenant of the room, in most delightful confusion. He was, I feel assured, a thoughtful man and blessed with more than the usual amount of human kindness. He foreshadowed, no doubt from experience, the necessity for some forlorn roomer to wile away dreary, lingering evening hours in a desolate room. I would like to shake that man by the hand. If he reads these lines I trust he will be rewarded for his thoughtfulness by the knowledge that his literature has been the medium to many happily, though lightly spent hours.

I still have the old room; it has a potent charm for me I shall be sorry ever to leave it. The cubicle, for it is little more, with its old furniture and dingy wall paper seems to me to be still the same, only a trifle more mellow. An air of friendliness appears to pervade the room, which has become my home. In it many secrets have been aired; many reveries, both bitter and sweet, dreamed, many sorrows

She stopped in her walk, and stood with head averted.

It is useless she said in a low voice; I have been through too much. I cannot leave Loders Abbey. I cannot marry; my life seems fixed among these shadows.

But all this is mere morbid fancy! he cried with the impetuosity of youth. Our lives are our own; we can shake them free from shadows. It is only your kindness to others which ties you to this place. Why should you give up all that makes life worth living to wait upon a selfish invalid.

All that makes life worth living, she repeated, looking at him with her strangely shining sky-blue eyes. And what do you think makes life worth living?

He took her hand gently between both his.

Love, he replied. Only love! She drew her hand away, but he had felt it quiver within his clasp, and he saw the tears start to her eyes.

Talk about something else! she exclaimed imperatively; and never speak to me in this way again. How long do you mean to stay at the Manor Farm?

Until I move to Lyllyngton Court. She stopped in her walk again, and looked at him, frowning.

Is it not possible to warn you? she asked almost irritably. Has everything been so pleasant and easy for you up to now that you imagine you have only to proclaim yourself master here and live happy ever after? Have there been no difficulties? Answer me truthfully, if you please.

Willingly! On the way down here from London I was dragged by a stranger, who yesterday met me and tried to poison me—

That cannot be true!

It is true, all the same. I would have shown you the bottle of poison I found in my pocket but unfortunately your favorite Sammy stole it with a handful of pence, from a drawer in the dining-room, and I haven't seen the fellow since. Then, on Sunday, a woman threw stones at me as I came from church, and later in the day Mr. Denzil Warne turned me out of his house because he recognized the crest on the ring I wear.

She glanced at it and shuddered. There is something wrong with my bedroom at the farm, he went on gallily. Not only have I a wicked-looking old lady in a picture who never takes her eyes off me, but she materialises herself, tampers with my letters—

Now you are joking. No, it is true. And, as a last touch, newspapers are thrown at me from nowhere, containing warnings—

He stopped short, for advancing towards them from the house under the fruit trees, a little bent, black-haired woman was approaching, and he knew her at once as the one he had seen passing along the road before the "Royal Hotel" after he had found the paper at his feet.

CHAPTER XXIX
Stephen Jessop

The black-haired woman walked straight up to Lady Anne, and gave her some message in a guttural tone under her breath, glancing as she did so at Harry, as though her words concerned him.

Jessop at close quarters, she was not ill-looking. Out of her leather-colored skin a pair of expressive black eyes looked upon the world with shrewd, if sad, observation. She reminded Harry of a pleasant-faced marmoset, with her small face, shrivelled face and her great, melancholy eyes.

The effect of her message upon Lady Anne was remarkable. She grew red and white, angry, puzzled, and frightened by turns. She appeared to remonstrate with the woman, speaking to her in a half French, half Spanish patois, which Harry could not follow. But Maria insisted and he noticed she made a gesture of her hand in his direction.

It is absurd, broke from Lady Anne. Then after a moment's reflection, she said to Harry, it must be one of his whimsical fancies. But Stephen Jessop, the old steward, who has been paralysed for seven years and who lives at Loders, insists upon seeing you. He says he hears you saved his little great-grandson from drowning last week, and that he wants to thank you. Is that true? It is true that I pulled the little lad out of a pond, Harry answered. He seemed to me a charming little chap.

Lady Anne's face clouded at once. I am not fond of children, she remarked coldly.

Maria addressed her again in the pause that followed, in low, insistent tones.

She wants to take you back with her, Lady Anne said. But you may not care to be bothered with Stephen.

On the contrary, I shall be delighted to make his acquaintance. The old gentleman is rather a Tartar, is he not?

She looked at him sharply. Oh, you have heard of him, she said in a voice of relief. Who told you?

Not quite through my own wish, I am on very friendly terms with your two young women servants, he replied, Miss Jessop and Miss Dupont.

I don't like either of them, she said emphatically. Susan is self-willed and pert, and Lisette is impossible. But Maria is determined to carry you off.

So you had better go with her. I will see you in the house later.

And will you show me the Abbot's tomb? he asked, anxious for a little more time with his liege lady.

If you like.

She spoke indifferently, and turned away after giving him a nod of dismissal. But as soon as he had accompanied Maria for a few yards the lock of keen anxiety came back upon her face, and she followed them at a little distance down the cloister, to the spot where a door which had been made in the wall gave immediate access to a small hall, almost without light, in which was one door only, that of Stephen Jessop's room.

Lady Anne entered this little hall immediately after Harry and his guide had gone into the steward's presence. There was no hesitation in her movements. She knelt down on the stone floor and listened intently, holding her breath the while, to everything that went on inside the room.

It was, as Lisette had said, a handsomely furnished apartment, arranged as a bed and sitting-room. The light was carefully shaded so as not to reach the eyes of the old man, who had been placed on a couch beneath the window. He lay upon cushions, wrapped in a silk-embroidered quilt, upon cushions, wrapped around his shoulders. Trails of a woollen sawl creper darkened the window, and within the light was so much modified by a curtain of fine red silk which was drawn across it, that Harry could only dimly discern the white hair and beard, the shaggy white eyebrows, and the pale emaciated face of what appeared to be a very old man, lying there without movement and with eyes that were nearly closed.

His voice, when he spoke after a short pause, was feeble and broken. Have you a-broughten en, Maria? he quavered.

Yes.

You mid go ontil I ring. The woman retired by the door through which she had entered, and, passing her mistress, who had risen to her feet at her coming, she went out into the garden.

They tell me, sir, Stephen began after a pause that you saved my little grandson from a-drownen's t'other day?

A Grouch's Story

A couple of old grouches were one night speaking of an old friend, who upon his marriage, took up his residence in another city. One of the grouches had recently visited the old friend, and naturally the other old grouch wanted news of the Benedict. Is it true that he is henpecked? asked the second grouch.

I wouldn't say just that, grimly responded the first grouch, but I'll tell you of a little incident in their household that came within my observation. The very first morning I spent with them, our old friend answered the letter carrier's whistle. As he returned to us, in the breakfast-room, he carried a letter in his hand. Turning to his wife, he said—

A letter for me, dear. May I open it?

A Lengthy Stock in Trade

The late Will McConnell, an advance agent and a Broadway character of much renown, was standing in the baggage room of a railroad station in company with Mel Stoltz, another advance agent. They were waiting to have their trunks checked. Presently a baggage handler passed, pushing a sample trunk, which according to Stoltz, was about nine feet long and about two feet wide.

For the love of Mike! ejaculated Stoltz, what do you suppose the owner of that trunk sells?

I don't know, said McConnell, but from the shape of that package I'd say bowling alleys.—Kansas City Times.

Japs Want Longer Legs

The attempts now being made to lengthen the legs of Japanese school-children, so that eventually the stature of the race may equal that of the European and American, were described to the City Club recently by Harvey N. Shepard, of Boston.

Mr. Shepard had just completed a globe-encircling trip, which was devoted to study of local self-government.

Children in Japan now sit upon chairs instead of squatting, he declared. This is being done as an attempt to make their legs grow longer.

Japanese surgeons say that the trunk of a Japanese is as large as that of a European, but that the former's legs are much shorter, making the race of Nippon appear decidedly smaller. If the legs of several generations can be stretched by using chairs, instead of the old custom of squatting, the Jap will be as tall as men of other nations.

No man or woman should hobble painfully about because of corns when so certain a relief is at hand as Holway's Corn Cure.

Spanking Inspiration

Olie was recalcitrant and she was wise. Mamma had certain rules for punishing her irresponsible offspring and they were as unalterable as those of the Medes of whom Olie had never heard but whose rigor she understood.

So when Olie forgot mamma's commands one day and lingered too long at forbidden play she felt the coming storm as she meandered home. Then came an inspiration.

Aunt Annie, won't you spank me, please? Olie fairly shouted at her auntie.

Why, Olie; what do you mean? What have you done?

Then came a tearful confession of wrong-doing, and as a climax:

Please, you spank me, Aunt Annie; mamma hurts more than you do.

It is only fair to state that Olie escaped altogether this time.

A Novel Complaint

A real estate man was confronted with a novel case of fault-finding the other day, and is still a little puzzled by it.

It appears that he negotiated the sale of a piece of land for a special purpose several years ago, and the property, through neighborhood changes, has become worth ten times what the present owner paid for it.

The other day the same man came in and said he wanted another lot for a special purpose. The dealer told him he had the very thing, adding that he believed the land would increase in value in the same ratio the first had done.

Not on your life, cried the prospective customer. I bought a $3,000 lot from you and it serves my purpose as well as if it cost twenty times as much. Instead of paying the expenses on a $3,000 lot, however, I am assessed on a $30,000 one and have no possible way of making up the difference. Sell me a $5,000 lot that will stay put at $3,000 this time, and don't you dare saddle me with a hungry white elephant.

And the dealer is still a little dazed.

It is said that each year three thousand foreign waiters find employment in England.

MONEY TO LOAN ON FARM PROPERTY AT CURRENT RATES OF INTEREST

More About
The Loading Platform

The present generation of Western farmers will never know the difficulties and vexations experienced by their predecessors in the earlier years when no one could get a carload of grain shipped in bulk except by loading it through an elevator. The system forced the majority of farmers to sell their grain to the elevator owners at arbitrary prices, and oft times to submit to heavy dockage and other annoyances, causing continual dissatisfaction. Now however the distribution of cars as fixed by the Grain Act, and the use of the loading platform, provide facilities which enable the farmer to secure satisfactory treatment in the disposal of his grain, and the highest market prices at time of sale. Every farmer therefore, should more and more endeavor to use the loading platform in shipping his grain to the terminal elevators. It is the safeguard of the farmers' freedom in disposing of his grain to the best advantage for himself. If farmers refrain from using the loading platform freely, it might result in its being done away with, because railway companies and elevator owners are strongly opposed to it. It is easy to understand why elevator people desire the loading platform abolished. The railway people on their part say it delays the loading of cars and helps to cause car shortage. This we know to be nonsense, because frequently after cars are loaded whether with grain, coal, lumber or other merchandise, they are sidetracked for days and even weeks instead of being promptly moved forward to destination. It is engine shortage and shortage of competent train men that mostly causes grain lockades on railways and not lack of cars. Let every farmer therefore, do all he can to use the loading platform and become an independent shipper. In subsequent advertisements we will state in detail the savings and other advantages of direct loading into cars compared with loading through elevators.

We handle the farmers grain strictly on commission, make liberal advances on car bills of lading, supervise the grading at time cars are inspected, secure the highest prices at time of sale and make prompt returns when sold. Write us for shipping instructions and market information.

HISTORY OF THE WEST

VALUABLE WESTERN DOCUMENTS PLACED IN ARCHIVES

Professor Oliver of Saskatchewan University, Discovers Important Manuscripts, Which Throw Interesting Light on the Early History of the West.

Ottawa, Ont.—The most valuable Canadian historical documents which have been discovered for years were collected this summer by Prof. Oliver, professor of history in Saskatchewan university. Prof. Oliver, who has been working at the archives for the government, has succeeded in locating practically all the records of the old Assinibola council of Manitoba, which was the only government in the west for years before Manitoba entered confederation. Most of these documents, it was supposed, were not in existence. Some of these manuscripts were found by Prof. Oliver in Manitoba and some in the archives at Ottawa.

Hon. Dr. Roche, secretary of state, under whose department the archives now falls, and who is taking a keen personal interest in collecting records of Canada's early history, thinks that these manuscripts will prove of exceeding value to historians and believes that they will throw fresh light on the early history of the west. He had a conference in regard to them with Dr. Doughty, deputy minister of the archives and Prof. Oliver and decided to publish the newly found documents in blue-book form so they will be available to all interested in western Canadian history.

We have less information I find, said Dr. Roche, in the archives in regard to the west than any other part of Canada. I want to secure all data, documents and manuscripts possible in regard to the early history of the west. Every year that passes makes it that much harder to secure. However, the minister is not confining his efforts to the west alone and, with a view to strengthening the hands of Dr. Doughty in securing original documents on Canadian history he has enlarged the manuscript commission by the addition of the following names: Arch-deacon Armistead, Nova Scotia; Arch-deacon Raymond, St. John, N.B.; Hon. Thos. Chapais, Quebec; Prof. Grant, Queens university and Sir Edmund Walker, Ontario; Prof. Chester Martin, Manitoba university and R. E. Gosnell, British Columbia.

Dr. Roche is also considering the appointment of a commission to go through all the Ottawa departments in a search for documents of historical interest which should be preserved in the archives. At present no effort is made to save or preserve departmental documents and the departments are filled with old files, which may hold documents of almost priceless value.

In England, said the doctor, after a certain number of years all papers go automatically to the archives. I think it is a good plan and I will likely recommend this system for Canada.

Among the relics found were human bones shaped into instruments used by the Indians, probably before the advent of the white man into America. Arm bones have been whittled at the wrist end to a point resembling a large spike nail. What these were made and used for is not known. Another addition is the erection in an excellent glass case of a pair of fine specimens of Arctic musk oxen.

Early Wheat Shapes Well

Winnipeg.—John Knox, one of the big grain growers of Greenridge, Man., shipped last week from that place over the C.N.R. to Toronto Exhibition, a sack of new wheat for exhibition purposes.

The grain, which is Red Fyfe, was cut on August 3, and is a very fine sample, grading No. 1 Northern. The berry is large and plump, and of beautiful color.

Harvesting has been general in the Greenridge district for nearly a week, and many farmers have from 75 to 100 acres of wheat cut.

The crop in that locality is very fine, and an abundant yield is assured.

Ontario Girls Come West to Marry

Toronto.—Eighteen prospective brides left the Union Station this week for Western Canada, travelling over the Grand Trunk.

A. E. Duff, district passenger agent states that this is only the first of a large number of Ontario girls who will go west for a similar purpose. Already he had received letters from various G.T.R. agents throughout the province stating that there were many girls in the country desirous of taking a chance in the matrimonial market and that he expected to have fully 50 in the next party.

Lord Sackville Visits Canada

Ottawa.—Lord Sackville, of Seven Oaks, England, and a member of the British house of lords, is one of the guests at the Chateau Laurier. He is not here on any special mission, but is merely looking over the country, and will do some hunting and fishing. He is a Conservative and opposes Irish Home Rule. He favors a large navy and believes the seriousness of the Anglo-German situation has not been exaggerated. He favors a Canadian contribution to the navy and also commends the Lloyd-George insurance bill, although he states that as yet it has not proved popular.

ONE MORE BATTLESHIP FOR U.S.

Democrats in Caucus Recede From Previous Attitude and Break Deadlock

Washington.—Democrats of the house have agreed in caucus to recede from their "no battleship" programme in this session and to permit the battleship champions to vote in the house for one such vessel. Unlike the four preceding caucuses, there was an absence of bitterness of feeling and by a rising vote of 95 to 11, the resolution of recession was put through. It is expected that the senate will agree to the one battleship ending the deadlock over the naval bill.

While the solid support of the majority in the house will not be given to the battleship programme, the leaders are confident that they will have far more than the necessary strength when aligned with the Republican friends of the navy. An effort will be made to have the warship to be authorized, the largest and most formidable fighting craft ever laid down.

FAST ATLANTIC SERVICE

Subject Will be Among First to be Considered at First Meeting

Ottawa.—Early consideration of the question of the establishment of a fast Atlantic service is promised on the return of the Rt. R. L. Borden and his colleagues from London. This subject will be among the first to be dealt with by the cabinet.

It is learned that during his stay in England, Premier Borden has received a renewal of the offer of the syndicate, which includes Sir Thomas Trowbridge, for the establishment of a fast service from Halifax to Black-sod Bay. The promoters, it is understood ask for the usual government assistance and profess to be ready to do today what they proposed to do in 1907. The offer includes a service not only to Halifax on the Atlantic but also on the Pacific.

It is probable that a more formal offer will be placed before the government by those interested in the scheme and will be considered when the whole question comes before the council this fall.

AUSTRALIA AND PANAMA CANAL

Makes Representations to England That American Proposition is Unfair

Melbourne, Australia.—Alfred Deakin, leader of the Federal Opposition, asked Premier Fisher in the House of Representatives recently, whether he intended to communicate with the Imperial Government respecting the American Senate's decision to exempt from Panama Canal tolls American coastwise shipping, as it is a matter of importance to Australia.

Premier Fisher replied that he regretted the American decision, which appeared to be clearly against the terms of the Anglo-American treaty. He already had communicated with and hoped that the matter would be satisfactorily settled.

EDMONTON — WINNIPEG CANAL

Estimate of Cost of Six-Foot Waterway to be Known Soon

Ottawa.—It is stated in official circles that Engineer Voligny, of the Department of Public Works, who has had charge of the surveys for the proposed six foot barge canal from Edmonton to Winnipeg, is now at work on a fiscal report and that an estimate of the cost of the proposed waterway will be in the possession of the Government early this autumn.

The expectation in official circles is that a vote will be placed in the estimates next session for the preliminary work.

It is thought that the canal will cost several millions but the development of water power along the route may tend to reduce the cost somewhat.

LOTS OF MONEY FOR NAVY

Unionist Member Says Canada Will Give Anything a Responsible Minister Asks

London.—F. E. Smith, K.C., Unionist M.P., for the Walton Division of Liverpool, who is now on his way to Canada, writes as follows—The maintenance of an adequate navy ought to be outside the scope of party controversy. The Canadian nation is enormously rich, and if appealed to with impressive truth, will find any money which a minister in whom it has confidence thinks right to ask. The one bright spot is found in the apparent intention of Canada to step into the field and help to redeem the maritime balance of the Old World.

To Banquet Premier Borden

Ottawa.—Preparations are now under way for the holding of a big banquet in the Chateau Laurier in honor of Premier Borden immediately on his return to Ottawa from England. The date has not been fixed pending the receipt of definite information as to the actual time of the premier's arrival home. All the arrangements are being made by the Conservative Association of Ottawa.

Calgary.—Alex. McLaren, a young Scotchman, who has been earning a precarious living in Calgary shining shoes, has been advised by a firm of Vancouver lawyers, that he is heir to a fortune of $100,000, and will leave for the coast city in a few days to become possessed of his legacy.

HOME RULE TROUBLES

GOVERNMENT IS AROUSED OVER INFLAMMATORY SPEECHES

Mr. Churchill Declares That Sir Edward Carson is the Moving Spirit of an Organization Which Has Avowed Its Intention to Set up a Provisional Government.

London.—The Dundee Advertiser, an influential Liberal organ, prints the startling hint that the government is prepared to take action should the inflammatory speeches and doings of A. Bonar Law, Sir Edward B. Carson, Frederick E. Smith and other Conservative leaders in inciting Ulsterites to revolt, have the effect of provoking disturbances in Ulster, thus bringing them within the pale of the law. The newspaper recalls that Parnell and his associates were lodged in Kilmainham jail under similar circumstances.

A significant connection in the Advertiser article is that Winston Churchill continues his polemic against A. Bonar Law. On August 12 Mr. Churchill made a passionate attack upon the leader of the opposition for the latter's incitement of Ulster to resist home rule. In a further letter Mr. Churchill, referring to the Conservative incitement of Ulster, declares that Sir Edward Carson is the moving spirit of an organization which has openly avowed its intention to set up a provisional government, that is, the first lord says, a government the Crown and the Parliament. There has been a large importation of arms in Ulster, Mr. Churchill continues, and widespread drilling. Whatever Sir Edward Carson's merits as a military commander may be, nobody is a better judge of how near you may go to the edge of criminal conspiracy without actually crossing frontiers which must be guarded by law.

Mr. Churchill proceeds at length to denounce Bonar Law as the leader of a great party who is assuming responsibility beforehand for everything that Sir Edward may say or do. He says that if the Opposition leader has such confidence as he pretends to have for overturning the government speedily and taking office himself, why not wait patiently and win honorably, and added:—Why capsize the boat in jostling for the tiller.

Bonar Law may try to scramble out of the mess, Mr. Churchill's letter says in conclusion, but the consequences of his actions will pursue him and those identified with him. He has drawn a blank check of indefinite currency against the whole resources of the Unionist party which any ruffian or lunatic may present any morning filled in by the hand of crime. It is noteworthy that Mr. Churchill sits in parliament for Dundee and the article published in the Dundee Advertiser may be inspired.

Sir William P. Byles, Radical Member of parliament for the north division of Salford, in a letter sent to the newspaper says:—I confidently expect that Bonar Law will draw in his horns for he probably knows that indictments for treason and felony are being prepared in the attorney-general's office.

Was Hounded Out of Army

London.—The case of Lieut. Allen Sutor, sentenced to twenty-one days imprisonment for throwing a stone through a police station window, is referred to by radical newspapers as another illustration of the fate which befalls nearly every one who antagonizes the upper class in England.

Sutor was forced out of the army about two years ago for publishing a book telling of the pink tea existence led by practically all British officers and of the total unfitness of most of them for military leadership.

He is a poor man and has since been hounded out of every position he has secured until he is on the verge of starvation.

It was to draw attention to this that he threw the stone.

Empresses Loaded Down With Freight

Vancouver.—For the first time in the history of the C.P.R. Pacific Empresses cargo has been stowed in staterooms on the westward voyage. This happened on the liner Empress of Japan, which sailed recently for Yokohama and Hong Kong. Liners on the trip from the Orient often carry silk in the cabins, but the Japan is the first to leave Vancouver with freight in the staterooms.

So much cargo is offered that quantities of it had to be shut out to await the next ship. Heavy consignments of flour, cigarettes and condensed milk fill the holds to the hatches and combings and staterooms were utilized.

Mulai Hafid Must Behave

Paris.—For keeping out of Moroccan politics in the future, ex-Sultan Mulai Hafid is to receive $75,000 yearly from the French Government, the "Temps" reports.

He is also to get a big indemnity for the forfeit of his throne, and his living expenses so long as he stays at Vichy, France.

Valuable Mementoes

Montreal.—In recognition of their services to the Duchess of Connaught during her recent illness, H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught has presented to Dr. Garrow and to the nurses most closely in contact with the duchess valuable mementoes. Four of the nurses at the Royal Victoria hospital were presented with autograph photographs.

TRADE WITH NEW ZEALAND

Commissioner Reports Island Colony Needs Many of Canada's Products

Ottawa.—The Canadian trade commissioner in New Zealand, W. A. Beddoe, in a report just received by the department of trade and commerce, contributes some interesting and important information with regard to trade possibilities between Canada and New Zealand. For the benefit of those who favor trade through Imperial channels it is shown that between the two countries there exists a reciprocal preferential tariff, adequate transportation facilities by subsidized steamers and a good demand for high-class Canadian natural and manufactured products.

The commissioner states that there is a particularly good demand for high class dairy cattle to improve New Zealand herds, and he asks for a list of exporters promising that good business will result. It is pointed out that during the year 1910, only 96 Canadian cattle were imported, most of these being from Ontario. For the fiscal year ending March 31, 1912, Canada supplied only $35,000 worth of boots and shoes to New Zealand.

Timber in the island colony is also about exhausted and the commissioner thinks that a trade in lumber could be worked up with British Columbia.

Last year more than one million dollars worth of iron and steel fittings was used and of this quantity Canada secured but $25,000, notwithstanding our preference of 20 per cent.

The commissioner is gratified to know that a new industrial concern for the manufacture of nails and wire will soon be instituted in Canada, and states that a large business may be established, providing the supplies are permanent.

The exports of butter to Canada during the past season, the report states, have exceeded all expectations. The report also notes that the arrival in New Zealand of thirty men, claiming to be Canadian farmers. They stated on arrival that the Canadian climate was too vigorous for them and they had decided to settle in New Zealand.

CADETS REACH MELBOURNE

City Will Make up for Indifference Shown at Sydney

Melbourne, Australia.—The contingent of Canadian cadets were accorded the warmest welcome on their arrival. The citizens of Melbourne have undertaken to defray all the expenses during their stay in Victoria.

Complaints have been made by the lads as to the reception they received at Sydney, which aroused public opinion here, and the people are anxious that no slur shall be cast on Australian hospitality, so they are giving the lads a splendid time.

A Sydney dispatch states that the party of Canadian Cadets came with so little announcement that their presence was not realized until some little soreness had arisen at the suppressed lack of interest in their visit.

Many people and organizations would have been only too delighted to show them hospitality.

The misunderstanding is much regretted, but the matter is now put to rights.

Fostering German Trade

Montreal.—Dr. Hans Hammann, the secretary of the German-Canada Economics Association who is on a mission to Canada with a view to fostering the trade between this country and Germany, has arrived in Montreal and after a few days here will visit Ottawa, Toronto and the west. He will confer with German business men in this city and also in other cities in Canada with a view to forming a corresponding association in Canada to keep the parent association in Germany fully informed of opportunities and developments that may lead to profitable trade.

C.P.R. Short of Laborers

Montreal.—There is a shortage of no fewer than 2,000 laborers on various parts of the C.P.R. system and the company has no hope that the shortage will be supplied in the near future.

Mr. Bailey, the company's employment agent in Montreal has been to Ottawa to see the commissioner of immigration but he has returned with little hope in sight.

Wages from $1.90 to $2.25 a day for construction work are being offered. The reason is believed to be that many European countries are now discouraging immigration.

Rogers Not to go to London

Ottawa.—Hon. Robert Rogers, who has returned to Ottawa from Winnipeg, has decided not to make his visit to England this year owing to the press of departmental business and the early return of Premier Borden and his colleagues. It is also possible that Colonel Hughes may call off his Aidershot trip.

To Use Motor Driven Warships

London.—The Copenhagen correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says that it appears that Italy will be the first power to use motor-driven warships.

The Italian government has just ordered from Copenhagen four warships fitted with Diesel engines.

H.B. Tenders Called Now

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

Text of the Lesson, Luke iv, 16-30. Memory Verses, 18, 19—Golden Text, John i, 11 (R.V.)—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

According to the harmonies of the gospels, this lesson takes us back in the story a long distance, back to a time before the Sermon on the Mount, to a time soon after the first miracle at Canaan, and the meeting with the woman of Samaria, according to Matt. xiii, 54-58; Mark vi, 1-6. He did revisit Nazareth after the events in last week's lesson and taught in the synagogue but could do no mighty work except healing a few sick folk, because of their unbelief. They were astonished at His wisdom, but they were offended at Him and said: "Whence hath this man all these things? Is not this the Carpenter, the Son of Mary, the brother of James and Joseph and of Juda and Simon, and are not his sisters here with us?" He only replied, "A prophet is not without honor but in his own country and among his own kin and in his own house."

Because He said something similar in our lesson for today some one must have thought the incidents the same, and the more perhaps, because Luke only records this, and only Matthew and Mark the other. The incident of this lesson occurred very early in His ministry, while that was much later and was probably His last visit to Nazareth.

Turning to this lesson we note that it was His custom to go to the synagogue on the Sabbath and it could not have been for the benefit received from any discourse there, but there was always a portion read from the law, the prophets and the psalms, and that could not but be profitable to a truly devout mind. Forsaking the assembling together is one of the common and increasing sins of our day, disobeying Heb. x, 25. There is a great forsaking of the house of God and displaying of His word, but all things hasten to the consummation and the kingdom shall be the Lord's.

On this particular Sabbath He was asked to read, and there was given Him the roll or book of the prophet Isaiah. Finding the place known to us as chapter lxi, He read just a few sentences and closed the book or roll and gave it again to the minister and sat down. With what expression He must have read! It was surely according to Neh. viii, 8. He read distinctly and gave the sense, and now, having taken His seat, He was about to cause them to hear.

He was about to cause them to understand the reading. We do not wonder that the eyes of all in the synagogue were fastened on Him (verse 20), for if this was His first reading it was the first time they had ever heard the Son of God read from His own book. How wonderful and startling were the words He uttered. "This day is this Scripture fulfilled in your ears!" (21). For a literal fulfillment of each sentence that He read see Luke viii, 22; viii, 12; viii, 42; ix, 39; xiii, 16; John ix. It was so through all His ministry.

Accompanied with the Holy Ghost and with power, He went about doing good and healing all that were oppressed of the devil, for God was with Him (Acts x, 38). They could not but wonder at His gracious words, and yet they could not forget that He was their own townsman, who had been brought up in their midst, whom they had seen and known day by day for nearly thirty years. Had He not made and mended their plows and yokes many a time? What could He mean by His reference of that Scripture to Himself? Whom did He think Himself to be? Truly they knew Him not, but, oh, if they had only had believed His word and inquired of Him more fully and meekly, how grand it might have been for them! What a heartache (as we would say) Israel always gave him, drawing from Him such words as: "Oh that they were wise, that they understood that they would consider! 'If thou hadst known!' How often would I—and y' would not! Israel would none of me. (Deut. xxxii, 29; Luke xix, 42; Matt. xxiii, 37; Ps. lxxxi, 11) how patient and long suffering he has been! But there is a limit, and so they have been scattered now these many centuries, and He has been keeping silence, bearing with His church and the nations and the devil, but there was a sentence in Isaiah which He did not read that day at Nazareth. He stopped just as He came to it and shut the book.

We are still living in the acceptable year of the Lord, and still waiting for the day of vengeance of our God upon His enemies and the time to comfort all who mourn in Zion (Isa. lxi, 2, 3; lxiii, 4). See Ps. i, 1-3; Isa. lxvi, 15, 16. They seem to have been offended not only at His saying but also because He did not in their town some of the mighty works He had done at Capernaum. He reminded them that in the days of Elijah and Elisha it was not a widow or a leper in Israel who was in a special manner helped, but a widow of Sidon and a leper from Syria, although at that time there were many widows and lepers in Israel. It seems strange that when people of their own will cut themselves off from blessings they grow angry because they are not blessed. But such is the perversity of the carnal mind, which is enmity against God. Those words about Elijah and Elisha filled them with wrath, and they would have killed Him had He not slipped away from them.

Biggest Prize for Wheat

At the Dry-Farming Products Exposition at Lethbridge
OCTOBER 19-26 1912

The $2500 Type F Rumely Traction Engine donated by M. Rumely Co. of LaPorte, Indiana, is the premier prize of 1912 for the best bushel of wheat. This valuable premium is open to the world, and to the grower of the best bushel of hard wheat grown under dry-farming conditions and exhibited at Lethbridge, it will be delivered free of charge at the company's distributing agency in either the United States or Canada that is nearest the winner's farm.

Any wheat grower can compete for this tractor—there is no string attached—and the man who farms one acre will have an equal chance at winning with the man who raises 10,000 acres of wheat, for it will be the best bushel of hard wheat grown where the annual precipitation is less than 20 inches that the judges will consider.

It is to be hoped that some of the farmers in the Bowden district will enter this contest, for we feel sure that some one of our farmers can win this prize, Try.

softened; many joys lived. The idea of dis-establishing my room of my books, my few ornaments, my pictures (I have got into the habit of thinking old almanacs and calendars as such) reads and tears all sorts of delicate fibres. To leave the room would cast a dreaminess of spirit over me and benumb me until I feel I could no longer care for anything. I should be on the verge of despair when darkest visions would haunt my mind.

But alas! unforeseen events cast their shadows before. My Uncle, the other day asked me in a kind of parental way, what I was paying for my room. I told him. He said that I was giving too much and that I must get better terms, or seek a new place. I am distraught. It harrows and horrifies me to think of asking the landlady to reduce the rent of my room. I hardly dare face her on the question; but I must muster up courage to do so.

When Miranda consults Bertie on the matter I trust that Bertie will nod favorably. I live in hopes.

Belief Growing That Man Should be Ambidextrous

Why is it that we neglect to use the left hand so much? Among English-speaking people 97 out of every 100 are right-handed when they reach maturity. Out of every 100 such persons 17 are born right-handed, three are born left-handed and the remaining 80 are born without preference as to either hand. Eighty are influenced to become strongly right-handed during early childhood.

No great asset in the world is so neglected as the average left hand. Formerly all the world was ambidextrous. Primitive man had no preference which hand he used. And in various parts of the world efforts are now being made to revive the use of the left hand.

Japan has for many years been teaching two-handedness to the men of its army and in its Public schools. The German Government is following Japan's example. Sir Robert Baden-Powell, hero of the Siege of Mafeking and founder of the Boy Scouts, does not consider a man a well-trained soldier unless he can mount equally well on either side of his horse, use the sword, revolver and lance equally well with both hands.

Guarding a Royal Train

Few people know that the passage of a Royal train is guarded almost every yard of the way, be the journey of the Sovereign short or long.

Many people laugh when they read of lines upon lines of soldiers drawn up along the railway tracks in Russia where the Czar travels; but the same thing practically occurs in England, only without the ostentatious display of uniforms. The lineover which the Royal train is to pass is quite as effectively guarded, though to all appearance there is nobody there.

MANY YEARS AN INVALID—UNTOLD AGONY FROM HEAD-ACHES

Dizziness, Sinking Spells and Excessive Weakness Disappear With Use of

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD

Nearly every woman will read with interest the letter of Mrs. Geo. Bradshaw, quoted below. It tells of years of great suffering from Nervous Headache and other symptoms arising from weak, watery blood and a starved and exhausted condition of the nervous system.

Mrs. George Bradshaw, Cozy Nook, Harlowe, Ont., writes:—"I am glad to state that I received benefits from Dr. Chase's Nerve Food which I failed to get any place else. I was troubled for many years, in fact from my early womanhood, with weak, watery blood, and given to drowsy. I suffered untold agonies from nervous sick headaches, dizziness, and sinking spells, in fact was a semi-invalid for many years. I tried many kinds of patent medicines, and got no help, and tried every new doctor that came along, but all failed to help me. Doctors told me I had no blood, and that my heart and kidneys were diseased, and that I had so many complaints there was not much use in doctoring up one or two. Four years ago I took six boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and was glad to see I felt better, and then got six more, and they have cured me of many of my complaints. When I began taking Nerve Food I weighed 110 pounds, and to-day I weigh 139, and am 45 years old.

A German merchant, resident in Moscow, has left all his fortune, amounting to half a million, to all those of his employees who have served under him for five years or more. Their portions are to be reckoned on the basis of the first annual wage multiplied by the number of years they have been in his service. Those who have worked for the firm less than five years receive a joint sum of $50,000, which is to be divided according to wages and length of service. The staff have decided to organize the business inherited by them into a joint stock company.

Black Fox Farming

There is in Prince Edward Island a new development which is attracting great attention in the shape of raising fur-bearing animals. It has been proved that the climate of the province is particularly suitable for the breeding of black foxes, and a number of farmers have embarked in the industry with the most profitable results. The fur of the black fox, owing to its rarity, has become exceedingly valuable, and the Commissioner of Agriculture for Prince Edward Island states that a pair of live foxes were sold recently for $25,000 and another pair for over $20,000. The price of this Spring's pups was over $10,000 a pair and $5,000 a pair, while a cash deposit varying from 10 to 25 per cent is being paid for fox cubs that are due to be born in the Spring of 1913. Black fox farming as it is called, does not entail any considerable expense, the ranches consisting usually of an acre of ground with a steel wire enclosure about 50 feet square for two pairs, containing little houses for the animals.

Science to Imitate Nature

The view has been advanced in more than one quarter that during the next two or three centuries invention probably will be in the direction of imitating the wonderful economy and the simple, direct methods of Nature. An instance in point is the electric eel. Its electric organ is in no sense a storage battery, but a contrivance by which electric energy is liberated at the moment when it is required. At rest the organ shows so small an electric force that a galvanometer is needed to detect it, but a sudden nervous impulse from the eel's spinal cord raises a potential of many volts with very little heat and so small an expenditure of matter as to defy the most expert chemist to weigh it. Fireflies, glow worms, and many deep sea fishes produce light without heat at a cost which would make a match an extravagant outlay.—Harper's Weekly.

A dime-in-the-slot photographic machine is, it is announced, about to be put on the market. The sitter places the coin in the slot and pulls a lever; the mechanism turns on an electric light, drops a plate into position behind the lens, opens the shutters for three seconds, develops fixes and washes the plate, and in fifty-seven seconds delivers the picture, finished and in a neat frame. If the mechanism should fail to work the dime is automatically returned.

1912 FARMERS' PRIZE CONTEST

THUS you will have three times as many chances of winning a cash prize. You do not have to use any certain amount of Canada Cement to win a prize. There are absolutely no "strings" to this offer. There are twelve prizes for each Province (three of $50; three of $25; three of $15; and three of $10) and you compete only with other farmers in your own Province and not with those all over Canada.

It makes no difference whether you have ever used cement. Many of last year's winners had not used it until they entered the contest. Welsh Doctors' Odd Fees

Welsh monarchs used to pay their doctors on a singular scale. At the court of the Gwynedd Kings the physician or surgeon ranked twelfth in order of precedence among the household officials, and his fees were carefully defined. For curing a flesh wound that was not dangerous the doctor was allowed no other perquisite than such of the garments of the wounded person as were stained with blood. But for curing any of what were called the three dangerous wounds, he was granted a fee of 130 pence and his maintenance during the cure, beside the blood stained garments.—London Chronicle.
